

ATC 10: Quote

Existence is miraculous. We're spinning around upside down in the middle of nowhere -- we don't know what we are, why we are, or where we are -- but we might learn who we are. How then could anyone have an ordinary moment? The arts are about identity -- the identity of the artist and the heightened sense of self that an art form offers. If we witness a moment of truth, whether we like it or not, we learn something about ourselves. Character is everything. It is the essential element that makes every life not a book, but a ten-volume set! The arts nourish character, invite expression of the uniqueness we each possess." ~David Earle, program note, River Run Centre, 2002.
