

What are some online tools for students to use to record scenes?

How do you teach drama in a hybrid setting? What is your classroom set up?

What are some restrictions you need to follow when teaching a drama class face to face? (i.e. no touching)

Is student collaboration a good idea in an online setting?

This page is about the questions we have about teaching drama online/in hybrid formats

How can we get students working in groups online?

How can we make adaptations to tasks for students without mics, space, cameras, etc.?

How can we avoid online drama class becoming strictly assignment based? i.e. How can we bring collaborative devising into the online format?

Monday Memes: on a scale of 1-9, how are you feeling?

Question of the Day
- This or That -
Underrated or Overrated - get students using their mics and stimulate some fun discussion!

"Caption this"
Share a photo, students come up with a name for it.

One word story,
Alphabet
Conversation, the Rule Game, Where the Wind Blows, but on Padlet

Whoosh, Whoa, Simon Says, Follow the Leader

Pictionary with the whiteboard (or charades in person)

This page is about community building ideas for teaching drama virtually

Pass the pen / phone / book / etc. Usually grows into an improv

Dragon's den: in groups, create an invention to address an everyday problem and come up with a name, slogan & explanation for how it works

Mafia: three secret murderers find victims, and we have to guess who they are.

Energy ball

Scavenger Hunt: find something in your house that is . . . and turn on your camera and show us

Late for work turned into where's your mask, Make me a Meme, murder wink, HOA, Simon says, Among Us

Dix
