

Grade 8 Drama Long-range Plan Framework

Using this Framework

This document is designed as a support tool for educators developing their long-range plans. CODE recognizes that teachers have varying assignments, time allocations, access to materials, student engagement, student identities, and student needs. A one-size-fits-all long-range plan is not feasible or desirable. As a result, this resource aims to ease the effort required to find high quality instructional resources and to support teachers in meeting the demands of the curriculum. Please customize your long-range plans according to your needs: mix and match with other grades for split classes, or mix and match between drama and dance (or another subject) if you teach multiple to the same group of students.

The first part of this resource will suggest lessons and units, indicate when in the school year or term it would be appropriate to teach them, and give clear indications of the curriculum expectations that are covered in them. The focus of the resource will also share any cross-curricular focus of the unit/lesson if applicable. Wherever possible, we have selected resources that are publicly available. Some suggested resources may require a CODE Membership to access.

The second part of this resource will suggest a sample sequence of units and lessons that would be appropriate for this grade level.

| Focus of Resource                | With an existing Script or short scenes in mind, the process of sound scaping and planning stage design allow students to see possible production roles and responsibilities behind the scenes. Teachers may refer to devised work on a theme, poetry, children's books (like those recommended in our Artists as Disruptors - Learning Hub by theme), StagePartners (free), Theatrefolk (free), Playwright Canada Press (for purchase), etc. as possible sources. Potential Cross-curricular ties to Visual Arts (Designing costumes, stage designs), Music (soundscapes) | Students will explore and make meaning of text. They will experiment with subtext, learn how to decode the dramatic conventions/clues in scripts, and develop short scripts. Through a variety of drama strategies they will write personal monologues, and rehearse and present their work. Cross-curricular with Language (C. Comprehension: Understanding and Responding to Texts, D. Composition: Expressing Ideas and Creating Texts) | This performance creation unit takes inspiration from the spaces we occupy. Five lessons culminate in a performance task with added space between this work for brainstorming and rehearsal suggested throughout. |
